

CHANDIDAS MAHAVIDYALAYA

Session - 2023-24

Course Outcome – Under NEP

Political Science

Swabhas S Roy

Head
Department of Political Science
Chandidas Mahavidyalaya
Khujutpara, Birbhum, W.B

NATIONAL EDUCATION POLICY

Course Outcome

POLITICAL SCIENCE

This paper consists of political thinking of various western thinkers on political philosophy. After completion of this paper the students will learn about different thinking of various thinkers on different issues of political philosophy. The students will also learn the periodical division of western political thought. For example, early political thought, medieval political thought and modern political thought. The students also learn which thinker appears when and what was the then political condition or background that propelled the thinkers to think. The values the political philosophers propounded are still relevant for present day society. Students will learn those political values which sailed through ages. Students will be acquainted with values like democracy rights, liberty, ideal forms of the state, nature and responsibilities of the rulers etc.

Moreover, the students will have the opportunity to learn the basics of political theory like its scope and nature, different types of theory, political issues, ideologies, nature and role of the states. Emergence of political theory, its decline, resurgence, meaning and nature of politics, approaches to the study of politics, political ideas like liberty, equality, rights, justice, types of political belief systems- Marxism, Gandhism, Fascism, Anarchism, even the end of ideology. In short, students will have the opportunity to learn the basics of political theory.

Basic concepts of political Science will be imparted to the students who choose Political Science as a Multidisciplinary course. Definition of the subject, scope, various issues, political institutions will be introduced to him.

Besides, Political Science offers a wide opportunity to learn about human rights. Genesis of human rights, human rights movement, terrorism and human rights. Moreover, students also understand the function of the human rights commission and the civil role of human beings to save and protect human rights.

One of the core areas of Political Science is Indian government and politics. After completion of this programme the students will learn about the constitutional development and making of the Indian constitution. fundamental rights and duties, redressal mechanism, centre state relationship on legislative, administrative and financial, on directive principles of state policy, on union legislature, on union executive, on union judiciary will be imparted to the students. The students will learn about party system, coalition government and on election commission etc.

Legislative practices and behaviour of the law-makers will enhance the skill of the students. They will get the opportunity to learn about the power and functions of MP and MLA, law making procedure and role of different parliamentary committees, parliamentary budget, ministry and working of ministry, role of speaker, MPLAD and other schemes.

Smbhans Singh Roy

Head
Department of Political Science
Chandidas Mahavidyalaya
Khujitpara, Birbhum, W.B

Department of Political Science
Programme Specific Outcome
Under CBCS-2023-2024

Chandidas Mahavidyalaya

Khujutipara, Birbhum

www.chandidasmahavidyalaya.ac.in

Subhas Singh Roy

Head
Department of Political Science
Chandidas Mahavidyalaya
Khujutipara, Birbhum, W.B

NATIONAL EDUCATION POLICY

POLITICAL SCIENCE- Course Specific Outcome

SEMESTER-I

MAJOR/DS COURSE-1011 WESTERN POLITICAL THOUGHT

This paper consists of political thinking of various western thinkers on political philosophy. After completion of this paper the students will learn about different thinking of various thinkers on different issues of political philosophy. The students will also learn the periodical division of western political thought. For example, early political thought, medieval political thought and modern political thought. The students also learn which thinker appears when and what was the then political condition or background that propelled the thinkers to think. The values the political philosophers propounded are still relevant for present day society. Students will learn those political values which sailed through ages. Students will be acquainted with values like democracy rights, liberty, ideal forms of the state, nature and responsibilities of the rulers etc.

Moreover, the students will have the opportunity to learn the basics of political theory like its scope and nature, different types of theory, political issues, ideologies, nature and role of the states. Emergence of political theory, its decline, resurgence, meaning and nature of politics, approaches to the study of politics, political ideas like liberty, equality, rights, justice, types of political belief systems- Marxism, Gandhism, Fascism, Anarchism, even the end of ideology. In short, students will have the opportunity to learn the basics of political theory.

Basic concepts of political Science will be imparted to the students who choose Political Science as a Multidisciplinary course. Definition of the subject, scope, various issues, political institutions will be introduced to him.

Besides, Political Science offers a wide opportunity to learn about human rights. Genesis of human rights, human rights movement, terrorism and human rights. Moreover, students also understand the function of the human rights commission and the civil role of human beings to save and protect human rights.

One of the core areas of Political Science is Indian government and politics. After completion of this programme the students will learn about the constitutional development and making of the Indian constitution. fundamental rights and duties, redressal mechanism, centre state relationship on legislative, administrative and financial, on directive principles of state policy, on union legislature, on union executive, on union judiciary will be imparted to the students. The students will learn about party system, coalition government and on election commission etc.

Legislative practices and behaviour of the law-makers will enhance the skill of the students. They will get the opportunity to learn about the power and functions of MP and MLA, law making procedure and role of different parliamentary committees, parliamentary budget, ministry and working of ministry, role of speaker, MPLAD and other schemes.

Surbhax Singh Ray

Head
Department of Political Science
Chandidas Mahavidyalaya
Khujutpara, Birbhum, W.B