A Brief Discussion

A departmental seminar has been organized jointly by the Department of Geography and Dept. of Pol.Sc. to promote the research among the students. A lot of work has been going on related to feminism and it is seen that students are also interested in this field. Keeping this in mind, Prof. Gopa Samanta of the University of Burdwan who is working in this field for a longer period has been invited to give some insights. She discussed the root of women's oppression, its adverse effects, women empowerment policies and related things. She has explained about the research scope in these areas and how students can work on it. It was really an interactive session where the doubts of the students have been cleared by the professor.

The departmental seminar started at 11:00 am with the felicitation of the resource person by the Principal. After the formal introduction of the event by Dr. Subhas Singha Roy, IQAC Coordinator, the Principal Dr. Sk. Ataur Rahaman has given the welcome address. Then the moderator briefly summarized the theme of the lecture and introduced the resource person to the audience. The session ended at 1 pm with the proposal of vote of thanks by the Head of Dept. of Geography Prof. Indrajit Mandal.

DEPARTMENTAL SEMINAR: REPORT SUMMARY

Topic: "WESTERN TRAGEDY: ARISTOTLE AND BEYOND: OEDIPUS THE KING, RIDERS TO THE SEA AND THE GLASS MENAGERIE"

Category: Research Area

Date: 14.12.2018 (Friday)

Time: 11.15 a.m. – 1.15 p.m.

Venue: Vivekananda Seminar Hall

Name of Resource Person: Dr. Suddhasattwa Banerjee

No. of Participants: 36

Description: As part of a collaborative venture between Chandidas Mahavidyalaya and Hiralal Bhakat College, the session was graced by the presence of our honorable guest Dr. Suddhasattwa Banerjee who imparted sound knowledge to the students of the English department on the given area. Our students were enriched by his versatility and his way of presenting the content in a simple way. His talk was full of inspirational value and bears the answer to our students' questions in every possible way. It also helped add a distinctive perspective to the way in which tragedy as a literary genre may be perceived with a special emphasis on the transformation of tragic drama through the centuries in western literature.

Thrust Area

- Dr. Banerjee laid special emphasis in his lecture on the scope for research related to the given topic.
- Helping students understand the nature of research work, the resource person attempted to point out to them the various areas where there was scope for further research and tried to motivate them to think independently and outside of the demands of classroom and examinations to enable them to better appreciate not only the topic of the discussion but the discipline as a whole.
- He pointed out the major areas where research work has already been undertaken, especially in the context of Western classical tragedy with an emphasis on the major dramatists who have shaped the trajectory of western drama.
- He drew references from a range of different writers and pointed out not only their contribution to world literature but also how their works have shaped and inspired later dramatists and writers through the centuries across time, space and language.

A Report on

Departmental Seminar

Topic: Democracy and Economic Development in Post-colonial India

Speaker: Dr. Dwaipayan Bhattacharya, Professor in Political Science, Centre for Political Studies, JNU, New Delhi.

Activity under MoU with Department of Political Science, Kandra Radhakanta Kundu Mahavidyalaya

Date: 20th December, 2018

Time: 1.30 pm

Venue: Vivekananda Seminar Hall

Number of participants: 75 (Seventy Five)

Sub-category

a) Research Opportunities in Indian Politics

Brief discussion:

The departmental seminar is presided over by the Principal, Dr. Sk. Ataur Rahaman.

Prof. (Dr.) Dwaipayan Bhattacharya is received by the students of the department with Uttorio and bouquet. Dr. Rahaman formally welcomes the distinguished Prof. Bhattacharya to take trouble and come over here to inspire us. He welcomes teachers from various colleges to attend the seminar.

Prof. Bhattacharya is introduced by Dr. Kamaran MK Mondal.

Issues of Current Democracy in India

Dr. Bhattacharya expresses gratitude to the department for inviting him to deliver a lecture. He also thanks the audience for attending his lecture. He deals with the issue of Indian democracy from the Starting from JNU agitation to the Singur movement, he moves up and down riding on a theoretical proposition. In the west, democracy came after capitalist development matured; but Indian democracy followed economic development first. Connecting democracy and development from a theoretical perspective deals with Indian democracy and makes a very interesting submission on the rise of right fundamentalism and India's participation in neo-liberal economy.

Research Opportunities in Indian Politics

Indian politics is a fertile ground for social science research. Prof. Bhattacharya believes that students can select any topic from Indian politics. Numerous issues like party politics, democracy, issues individual rights and group rights, regionalism, secularism, communalism, political economy of development, identity politics, local government, administration, judicial activism, globalization, foreign policy electoral politics, coalition politics etc.

Research on any topic can be done following qualitative or quantitative methods. Prof. Bhattacharya shares the name of departments and the university where issues of Indian politics can be taken for research.

After his completion of the lecture, numerous questions are raised and Dr. Bhattacharya deftly handles them. Golam Masum, Assistant Professor, Bolpur College thanks him for the nice presentation and pledges to convey the same message to his students. Prof. Sarbajit Roy Chowdhury, Haripal Vivekananda College, Hooghly raises theoretical issues regarding the relationship between democracy and capitalist development. Prof. Zaman, Nalhati Hiralal Bhakat College, compliments the department for organizing such enticing and encouraging lectures. Samema Akhtari, 3rd year Political Science Hons student asks Dr. Bhattacharya how new voters can choose a true representative.

Dr. Subhas Singha Roy formally extends vote of thanks. He thanks Dr. Bhattacharya, other college teachers, his colleagues, students and above all students remain present actively in the seminar. He expects that such a type of seminar will be organized in future and all will respond like this.

Dr. Bhattacharya again thanked the college authority.

Dr. Rahaman concludes the lecture with an expectation that the students and teachers have been benefited by this lecture. Nearly 75 (Seventy five) participants (students and faculty members) are present.

Report on Departmental Seminar

Topic : Sets Theory

Sub Category: Research aspect

Date : 08/05/2019

Venue: Vivekananda Seminar Room

Time : 12:00 PM

Presented by : Prof. Bhaskar Ghosh

No. of participations: 14

Brief discussion: A departmental Seminar has been organized by the Department of Mathematics to encourage the outlook of the students. Prof. Bhaskar Ghosh to give a special lecture on "Sets Theory".

Set theory is used throughout mathematics. It is used as a foundation for many subfields of mathematics. In the areas pertaining to statistics, it is particularly used in probability. Much of the concepts in probability are derived from the consequences of set theory.

Set theory has applications in the real world, from bars to train schedules.

Set theory today is a vibrant, active research area, characterized by intense fundamental work both on set theory's own questions, arising from a deep historical wellspring of ideas, and also on the interaction of those ideas with other mathematical subjects.

Set theory is an important topic to engineering students where an understanding of the principal will ensure the success in completing advanced level courses.

Outcomes:

- All the students are quite excited and encouraged by such gracious lecture. The students motivated in research work in Set theory.
- Returning to real-life examples of sets, they can observe that in the kitchen, utensils are organized in such a way that plates are kept separate from spoons.
- When we go to mobile showrooms, they see that sophisticated phones like Galaxy duos, Lumia, and so on are segregated from plain mobiles.
- When they go shopping in a mall, we all have noticed that there are separate portions for each kind of things.
